

Rehearsal dinner toast

Jess & Mike · 97 words · about 45 seconds

Thank you all for coming a day early, and thank you Ellen for opening the barn for us tonight.

I will be brief, because tomorrow I will not be.

Four years in, these two still tell each other everything twice - once because it happened, and once because the other one was not listening properly the first time. That is a marriage, more or less.

Tomorrow I get to watch Tom walk our daughter across a field he has complained about since March. Tonight I only want to say: we are very glad you are all here.